

```

>>> s1='phy'
>>> s2='che'
>>> s3='maths'
>>>
>>> marks=int(input('enter the marks: '))
enter the marks: 91
>>> if(marks >= 95 and (s1='phy' and s2='che' and s3='maths')):
...     print('secured doctor grp')
... elif(marks >= 85 and (s1='phy' and s2='che' and s3='maths')):
...     print('secured eng grp')
... elif(marks >= 75 and (s1='phy' and s2='che' and s3='maths')):
...     print('secured arts and science grp')
... else:
...     print('try again')
...
File "<python-input-15>", line 1
    if(marks >= 95 and (s1='phy' and s2='che' and s3='maths')):
                        ^^^^^^^^^
SyntaxError: invalid syntax. Maybe you meant '==' or ':=' instead of '='?
>>> if(marks >= 95 and (s1=='phy' and s2=='che' and s3=='maths')):
...     print('secured doctor grp')
... elif(marks >= 85 and (s1=='phy' and s2=='che' and s3=='maths')):
...     print('secured eng grp')
... elif(marks >= 75 and (s1=='phy' and s2=='che' and s3=='maths')):
...     print('secured arts and science grp')
... else:
...     print('try again')
...
secured eng grp
>>> |

```